

Small town values. Big time opportunities.

What if you woke up tomorrow morning in a beautiful home in a charming, all-America Midwestern town, the kind of place where people actually fly the flag on Flag Day? Then you drove down scenic, uncongested roads to your brand-new, state-of-the-art facility, supported by a true 21st century infrastructure, including a pre-existing underground fiber-optic network? What if you woke up in Coldwater, Michigan? Perfectly located, midway between Chicago and Detroit, with easy access to all major freeways. Sure the sun comes up over Coldwater just the same as it does over every other town. It just seems to shine a little brighter here.
